

I am tremendously concerned about government intervention to protect businesses from competition. The push by the National Association of Broadcasters to limit the right of satellite radio to provide local content is anti-consumer and anti-competitive. I have been a satellite radio subscriber for well over a year and find it to be a much better and worthier product than what is produced locally. The government should be protecting my right to a variety of choice in the market place. They should not be restricting a company from providing a service its customers desire. If this hurts some local broadcasters, that is the product of living in a free-market economy.
